A CROSS WRAPPED IN HOPE

In Matthew's passion story, the cross is wrapped round with hope. There is real devastation for the land in Jesus's innocent blood, as in all the innocent blood that has been poured out upon the earth. Darkness covers the land. The earth is shattered. But this is not the end. By the grace of God there is more to this story than the capacity of human sin to destroy. Jesus's death, in Matthew, is intertwined with resurrection. Out of the shattered earth the people rise, bones knit together as God promised in Ezekiel 37, dry bones alive again. They rise at Jesus's death. And after his resurrection — because the saving act is not complete in Jesus's death alone, because death and resurrection are two movements in a single song of grace — after his resurrection the risen people of Israel come into the holy city and are seen by many. They are called "saints," then and now, these people knit together and forgiven, given new life, in Jesus's blood and his empty tomb.

LIFE AFTER DEATH

After my parents Del and Marilyn Wilbert passed away, in 2018 and 2025 respectively, my siblings and I were tasked with what we should do with the finances that were given to us by our parents. Del and Marilyn were long term members of Holy Trinity since 1989. After their passing, they live on through their children and the countless other lives who were touched and blessed by knowing them. Also, they live on through their estate plan, which was passed on to their three children. Our parents gave to several charities throughout their lives including their church. Gifts to Holy Trinity were directed at the discretion of their children.

Specific direction was given to include the music program at Holy Trinity; since our parents loved this aspect of worship and our mother was a long-term member of the church choirs. As I am preparing my own estate plan, I am following in my parents footsteps in wanting to leave something to Holy Trinity in the way of something donated while I am still around, so I can visibly see the benefits of my monetary gifts; as well as contemplating the possibility of a portion to the endowment fund of the church to support future ministries of the church.

Since I do not have any children of my own, this is a way that I can help the people of Holy Trinity connect their lives to Christ after I am gone.

In God's love and remembrance and with honor to my parents, Del and Marilyn Wilbert.

May God bless Holy Trinity!

HANGING WITH MY PEEPS

Catechism Recap

On Sunday, March 22 our catechism kids gathered at Emmanuel Lutheran Church to make bible story dioramas using a classic marshmallow confection and perennial Easter basket favorite — Peeps.

A variety of flavors were used, include strawberry shortcake, Dr. Pepper, Rice Krispie Treat, and more.

The kids broke into groups and created scenes from Noah's Ark, Palm Sunday, and David & Goliath.

Afterward, we continued our study of the Apostle's Creed and ended, as always, with a game of Sardines.
